VSP, the largest vision insurance company in the U.S., has a new Bryant Park office for The Shop—the innovation lab that seeks to develop technologies to improve eye care and accessories. The 13,500-square-foot office, planned by Kostow Greenwood Architects, showcases the construction of this early 1900s commercial loft. Two floors are connected via a spiral staircase. The space is outfitted with an array of tools so employees can be hands-on in designing eyewear, and storage trays are in a cabinetlined library for easy access to eyeglass molds
